His vagaries exelte comment, but not wonder. In strong contrast this, in manner and matter, was the disgelle hymn, "Glory to God on high; on earth peace to men of good will," he considered the subject in a religious, not in its practical aspects. He said he did not think it was proper in that holy place to refer to It was proper in that holy place to refer to the origin of the wo and calamity that has hefallen the nation, nor to suggest remedies. New Books.
"The Children's Fable Book," containing one hundred and sixty fahles, and sixty Illustrations, is certainly one of the most interesting, as it is one of the most useful, books that could be pluced in the hands of the little ones. The fables are well selected; the morals are well pointed; and the "pietures" serve well to impress both the story and the lesson on the minds of those for whom the book is designed.

"Studies from Life," a series of sketches hytheauthorof "John Hallfax,gentleman," and other well-known popular works, is an attractive looking volume, and from a cursory examination we should judge an interesting one.

"Herodetus" in two volumes forms part of a series of Greek and Latin Texts now being issued by the Harpers. The above are all for sale by John P. Morton, 459 Main street.

"Helper's Impending Crisis Dissected" le the title of a volume recently issued by J. T. LLOYD, Philadelphia. It is from the pen of Samuel W. Wolffe, a Virginian, and seems to be a very thorough refutation of the sophistries, and a complete exposition of the lalsehoods, of the infamous book written by Helper, and distributed, with the indorsement of the leading Black Republican politicians, throughout the country in the last canvass. Mr. J. D. SEATON Is agent for the sale of this work in Kentucky, and wants agents to sell it in all the counties. His headquar-ters are at Crump's, Fourth street. "Tanner's Louisville Directory for 1881, and Business Advertiser," is now out. Great pains have been taken to make this work as complete as possible, and in full-ness of details and accuracy of statement it will, we believe, more than sustain the character established by the first volume compiled by the same gentleman, which was considered the best of the kind ever issued in Louisville. A DISCOURSE

REV. THOMAS H. HOYT,

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

The observance of a day of Fasting, Humiliation and Prayer Is not an effort of despair, but of hope; it declares that confidence in man is lost, but that confidence in God Is revived. Having exhausted every human devlee, and struggled in vain to release Itself from the toils, a whole people learns the lesson so often taught the individual—that it is better to trust in the Lordthan to pateonidence in man.

Fasting is the ontward sign of the humiliation and penitence which we should feel and express this day; hence it is idle mockery unless we really repent and archumble.

It was at home; he said he would meet me at night, and go with me and get it; myself and Anile went to my house to supper, and Walker came in; he cat supper with me; I louned Here Walker my large double-barrelled pistol; I live on Fitth street, between Breckinridge and Kentucky; I got my pistol from Walker's house.

lise we not enough to humble us? The foundations of our country are being broken up, the noblest temple of liberty in the world is being demolished, one column has fallen, and while I speak, the crash of another may smite upon our ears. It is a spectacle that might make angels weep, and should wring from its tears of blood. We are on the verge of civil war, passions are inflamed, violence is threatened, States are arming, and weare in hourly danger of collision, at any moment, brother's hands may reck with brother's blood. It is a time to proclaim a fast and a solotim convocation. Be hung in mourning, ye heavens, and he clad in sackcloth, ye earth!—This great lighthouse of the world, whose beacon sent its rays across the waters, guiding the wandering barks into the haven of liberty, is growing dim, and is rocking to its base. It is as though the Polar Star were suddenly to plungs from its steady resting place and hegin to "wander darkling in the eternal space, rayless and pathless." It is a day of trouble, of rebuke, and of blaspheng—a day to be marked with hisck in the world's calendar.

But we feel that this, the Iliad of our woos, is not an accident or a hare milsfortune, but a punishment for our sius. The conscience as well as the heart is burdened, and a sense of Ill-desert aggravates our sorrows. We intinitively recognize the connection between ain and panishment: we know not precisely what that connection is; we cannot saylwhat sin or whose sius have brought the infliction, but punishment implies sin, and "the sin must be enormous where the punishment is so fearful. This vast, imperial Republic, bequeathed to us by a uoble ancestry, conscerated by a uohle history, the work of illustrious statesmen and patriots, is fulling a preyto national degeneracy and corruption. In less than a century, we have spolled the legacy of our fathers. A Christian people, with Christian institutions, the envy and admiration of the world, have not lived to the age of pagan Greece. Surely God has a controversy with us, and it sought only to propillate their idol. The whole notion of a representative government has become perverted. It is regarded simply as a method of giving expression to the popular will, as a contrivance for finding out and doing what the people if assembled in mass would do. This doctrine is utterly failse. "Representatives are appointed not to ascertain what the will of the people is, but what the to aught to be," not to do what the people think is right, but what the representatives think is right. "The people are not permitted to legislate en moss because their passions and caprices are likely to prove stronger than reason and truth. To seeme deliberation, to protect themselves from their own prejudices and passions, and to cause the voice of reason to be heard, they retire from the seeme, and leave the Inquiry and decision of their duty to chosen men, in whose wisdom they have confidence. This is the true theory of parllamentary government." Had this idea been held, our representatives would have guided public opiulon; instead of being swept along by it, they would be pillars of the State, and not mer weather-vanes to show the course of the popular breeze.

The next evil result of the undne exal-

The next evil result of the undne exal-The next cell result of the nudne exal-tation of the people, is the nullimited doc-trine that the insjority should govern; whereas the authority of God is supreme, the authority of written constitutions next, and the authority of the people last in the series. This error is autheliently injurions when applied to the legislation of a single State, but is utterly ruinous when force into Federal affairs, the conduct of which

As to the former, the ease of Nineveh, as related in the text, shows that even heathen may escape indigments by threly rejectioned. As to to the latter, the history of Israel is tall of instruction. When the army of Sennaclarith lay at the gates of Jerusalem, Hezekiah "rent his clothes, covered himself with sackeths and heat of the sentence of the land hecause of His people that dwell in it? And can His people look upon it in any other light than as the smiring of a Father's hand?

As we lie here at the feet of the Almighty, the question presses itself anon us, "Lord, what wiltthou have me to do?" If any man lack wisdom, let him ask of God who giveth liberally and upbrableth not. What shall we think of this great struggle, and what is the path of duty for us? Speaking in His name, I will endeavor to answer so lar as I have God's anthority for what I say:

And, first, we should settle in our minds that great principles underlie this whole matter; we should avoid superflicial views, and strive to see the mighty issues that are pending. This is not emporary though acute disorder of the body politic, but a chronic distemper, now breaking out afresh and throwing the patient into convulsions. This young giant would not writhe and perish under a mere functional derangement, an organic disease prays on the vitals. The different portions of our country could not come into such hostile and deadly collision upon the ordinary questions of public policy.

One section of this country believes that its dearest rights are injured—the right of self-government, the right to constitutional liberty, the right to equality in the common Government and common domain; she believes that along with these rights implicated the truth, the truth of God, the recaled truth of God; and believing that these priceless trensures are glidlug from her grasp, she is struggling to regain the mild as Ancricans, rights that began to be secured to us when the Barous wrested Magna Charta from the nerveless grasp of King Johu; rights that songht revenge for their violation in the royal shood of Churles I; rights, the vindication of which, hurled James II from the throne; rights, that rislug to still grauder proportions in this new world, found a champrou in Washington, and embodiment in the iustitutions of our country.

God gave us these rights, they are singular marks of His goodness, and we cann and the how of discharging our duties in this matter.

But these are purely political questions and as such cannot properly be discussed in the pulpit. As a mea and citizen, I have my own opinions upon them—opinions which are well known by you; for with out obtruding my sentiments on any one and while pursuing steadily the duties on my high and ardnons vocation, I have no hesitated to utter my thoughts when called noon to do yo. Born on the soil of South itate an example framsht with so much slu and mischief. For these reasons I cannot take up those questions—they are civil and not at all religions.

But there are other aspects of the matter which rightfully fall within the scope of this day's discourse—aspects which are so strenuously arged by every dienate of humanity and religion, and which so exactly tally with the precepts of the Gospel of peace, that I feel bound to press them apon your attention. The question that litts his solema prevence amongst as this day's, "shall we have peace or war?"

The responsibility of its answer rests aponyon as eltizens of Kentucky, and as a portion of the middle Slavcholding States, it is for them to soy whether blood shall he shed. They may havedelayed their answer too long, but I trust not. These great States should rise up from their knees this day and hough the horses of war. They should say to the North, you shall not at tempt force towards the secoding States—they must be allowed peaceably to go out, If they choose.

It is not necessary that you should admit the right of secession, and that we do not admit the our Constitution contemplated secession, and that we do not admit that our Constitution dontemplated secession, and that we do not admit that our Constitution Contemplated secession, and that we do not think the Cotton States warranted in what they have done; but as they have done it, we will not permit them to be as sailed. And is it not a revolution accomplished? Does a revolution ever go hackwards? Can foreecompel South Carolina to return? No! the whole power of the Federal Government is inadaquate to the task. She may be overrun by invading armies—her citics may be demolished, and her fleids ravaged; her churches may be deserted to the moles and the bats; her classle halls may echo the hoot of the midnight owl; her sons may perish on an hundred battle-fields; her women and children and her old men may fly from their burning dwellings—but she ledwing in their breasts, and believing themselves to be fighting

We quote:

The force now remaining In Fort Sumter consists of about one hundred and thirty such, fifty of whom are laborers, and the rest are troops belonging to the artiflery branch of the United States acrive. These latter are sinfficient to man about one-half the guns of the fort, supposing the guns were all mounted. Fortunately, however, this its far from being the ease. Out of seventy-five pieces of heavy ordnance now lut the lort only eleven are fully mounted. These are all casement guns in the lower tier, and include the nine guns of that face of the fortress fronting towards Sullivan's Island. Two more of these casement guns were nearly mounted on Friday evening, but the work of getting them in position is necessarily slow and tedions, with the force now at work, it is impossible to mount more than three guns per day at the utmost. The heaviest guns, too, which are the tru inch Columbiads, have yet to be mounted. One of the casement guns at one of the angles of the walls has been placed in position so as to cover Castle Pinckney. The garrison were on Friday evening getting ready to mount some of the sastement guns on the south side of the walls.

Besides these heavy pieces, four of the lighter barbsite guns are mounted npon the ramparts, politing towards Morris Island. These are so arranged npon pivot carriages as to sweep around the whole horizon. The magazine of the fortress is well stocked with an immense quantity of grape, canister and shells, and ahont seven undered barrela of powder. All the small arms and stores of Fort Moultrie have been transferred with the garrison, and there is a sufficient accumulation of provisions to last, in case of necessity, for six months at least. Four large clisteria contain an ample supply of Fresh water, but it Is now well understood that Fort Samter has no fact to space. The runor current in the city that a number of the guns in Fort Samter, which are not yet mounted, had been spiked the space of the fortres in suitional to madation.

The damage at Fort Monltrle, says the Courier, though as yet unrepaired, is neither so extensive nor so irremediable as was at first thought. Under countand of Major at first thought. Under command of Major Anderson, the work was strengthened in a truly wonderful manner, though many parts of it were unfinished at the time of the evacuation. However, this is all so much lacor saved the South Carolina troops, and under the energetic superintendence of ('ol. Quinn, engineerin Chief, and his efficient corns of Alds, chosen principally from the Washington Artillery, the work commenced is being busily pushed forward to completion. A large force of laborers have been put to work, and in a very short time everything will be set in order.

ed forward to completion. A large force of laborers have heen put to work, and in a very short time everything will be set in order.

Contrary to expectation, none of the gams of the fort are masceratly injured, those that were spiked were rendered uscless for the time being only. The instruments used to stop up the tonch holes were simply wrought nails, most of which have already been taken out. None of the guns were injured by the application of tare either inside or outside—and the way the impression got abroad that this substance has been used by the evacenating party was from the charred appearance of the tar always used as coating to protect the guas from the weather after it was barned.

Carriages for the heavy eight inch Columbiads, hearing on Fort Sumter, which were destroyed by the on the night of evacenation, are being reconstructed with all possible dispatch in this city. The from work of the old guns is capable of heing used again, so that, after all, not much time will be lost.

In deserting the fort, milltary men say Major Anderson did as little harm to the works as it way possible for him to do. He might have done a great deal more. He might have done a great deal more. He might have been used worthless even after a year's labor had been spent lu repairing it. As it now is, to-morrow night will see it almost as strongly fortified as it was on the 26th.

In relation to other points of defense in the barbor, a great deal has been said on the street, and since the affair at Fort Sumter, there has evidently been a disposition to grunble hecause more active steps have not been taken in throwing up hreastworks and hatteries on allaralisable points. Those who consider the subject, however, will see that until the act of evacenating Moultrie and occupancy of Sumter was communiated, there was a mutual agreement het ween South Carolina and the Federal Government, which hound us in honor to take no active warlike steps. After faith was broken by our opponents, all the dispatch requisite has heen used by a Progressive Submissionism The argumenta for submission to the North have gone through so many phases that it is difficult to follow them. We sub-join a summary of the leading ones in the order they have been brought forward, to nize the South to put on the halter:

Kentucky, however, owes to herself end her people other high responsibilities which cannot be overlooked. Her interest, her sympathica, her destiny inseparably connect with her sister slave States of the South. Any other position will be death, shame, and dishout upon her.—The horrors of snother St. Domingo would be tolerable compared with the degradation, miseries, and ruin that await her should she not repose for protection upon the strong arms of a wided South.

Fellow-Citizens: The all-absorbing issues, now eugrossing public attention, will furnish mapology for this communication.

Were I now indifferent to the circumstances surrounding our communication. Were I now indifferent to the circumstances surrounding our communication. In no spirit of the partisan do I address you. The events uow trauspiring at the Federal Capitol are too mounentous to be thus met, considered, and acted upon. Our Government, formed by the wisest and best men who ever laid the foundation of an empire, is now tottering to its fall. One State has already withdrawn from the Federal Culon. Before the 4th day of March next others will follow—probably the States of Lonisiana, Mississippl, Arkansas, Alabama, Georgia, Florida, and Texas. The border Slave States will thus be separated from their sister Slave States of the South. The very next advance in eauses, now operating throughout the country, may bring us face to face with revolution, and all the horrors of a long and bloody war. What position, then, will they adopt? While these mighty eventiare transpiring around us, Kentucky cannot remain passive. She cannot told her arms and be awept on, or overwhelmed by these events. She cannot avoid them if she would. She must meet them, and it becomes her to meet them with a frankness and bolduess worthy of her past character and fame. In days gone by she has stood by the Union with a martyr's devotion. She has struggled for It, and suffered for it. Let her now arouse herself to the mighty responsibilities resting upon her. She cannot, in justice to herself, now stand still and refuse to be an actor in these events. No State in the Confederacy Is more interested than she in their final termination. If she determined to, the heard of heeded by either section. Should she heard or heeded by either section. Should nothing be agreed upon by Congress as a basis of settlement before the border slave States shall thus assemble in council, my judgment is that these States, when thus assembled in council, my judgment is that these States, when thus assembled in council, my judgment is that these States, when thus assemble in council, my judgment is that these shed be considered and the proper way submit them to the people of the Occasion demands, in the ustine of amender way and the Constitution, and in the proper way submit them to the people of the Northern States for their approval or rejection. Let these be the basis of a reconstruction of the Government, and it rejected, then let them act as becomes a people who have exhausted the last effort at reconciliation, and who have been forbearing and long suffering under wrong and oppression. Ilaving hus acted, they may appeal to the food of justice, and the judgment of all men in vindleation of their patriotism, their truth and integrity of purpose.

The South can no longer allord to have this slavery question an open question. Its continuous agitation will overwhelm her; will bring ruln and devastation upon her.

A knowledge on the part of the slaves that a nighty and powerful political puncher. A knowledge on the part of the overthrow of the institution and for their deliverance, will demoralize the institution of slavery in the States where the institution of slavery in the States where the institution of the overthrow of the institution and for their deliverance, will demoralize the institution of slavery in the States where the sisting and reacting now the other, hy all the appliances of incendiary documents scattered through the Slave States, the operations of the underground rallroad, and raids and iuvasions by such desperadoes as John Brown and Montgomery, with all the other nameless enries which must grow out of this end-less agitation, will hasten est moment. In this council a definite purpose should be avowed, and a positive programme of action resolved upon. Should

In that event the instincts of self-preserva-tion and manhood, on the part of the people of the Southern States, will work a vesult which Northern funaticism, madness and wrong have fulled to accomplish from the foundations of the Government up to this time. This result may involve consequences painful to the heart of every true patriot in the land; but this reflection will, to some extent, mittgate this pain, when we know and feel that the guilty cannot escape the misfortunes they seek to bring upon others commences, argument ends."

Iu my judgment, the first and most vital question to be determined by her is this—shall force be used by the Federal authorities to coerse the secoling States? This proposition will be precipitated upon the National Congress in a few days at farthest, when the commissioners from the secoding States shall present themselves at the Federal Capitol to treat with this Government as independent powers. The President will then, no doubt, refer the whole subject to that body in a special message. In that event, the question must be met and acted upon; and the manner in which it is determined, in my judgment, will settle, for weal or woe, the misfortines they seek to bring upon others—

"The avil that men do lives after them."

Fellow-chilzens, the questions to which I have thus referred are, in my judgment, vitai and fundamentai. They cover the whole ground of present issues. They seek to avoid the calamities of a long and bloody war. They have every chance for a reconstruction of the Government by proper and necessary amendments to the Constitution; and, in the event every effort at a reconstruction of the Government by proper and necessary amendments to the Constitution; and, in the event every effort at a reconstruction of the Government by proper and necessary amendments to the Constitution; and, in the event every effort at a reconstruction should fail, and the terrible alternative should be forced on us to sever one relations with the Northern States, then let this be done in peace. Let not the Union our fathers made be dissolved in the blood of their children.

If, in the end, a permanent soparation of the States shaft be the reall; those who may live in after times to pronounce judgment upon us and our actions as a people, will be puzzled to comprehend how a Government like ours—not decayed by age; not subverted by ambilion; not conquered by a foreign insilon; that has evinced through all its past history such elements of power, vitality, and progress—could thus be overthrown in the middle of the 19th century, and that, too, by a generation only two degrees removed from that revuitionary period, which gave to the world a Washington, a Hancock, a Hamilton, a Henry, a Adams, a Jeilerson, and a Madison. As they gaze upon the ruins of this conce prond Capitol, and behold its crumbling arches and broken columns, and remember that it was here upon this spot where a Clay, a Webster, and a Calhoun gave to the world the mighty and thrilling productions of their genins and patriotism, which will consecrate and make classic throughout all time to come the age in which they lived, what will be their verdict upon the virtue and intelligence of the Ameri "The evil that men do ilves after them " tion must be met and acted upon; and the manner in which it is determined, in my judgment, will settle, for weal or wee, the destiny of the Federal Union, not only for the present, but in all time to come. Wisdom, forbearance, and fortitude, may save the Republic—force or violence will make certain its fail. What, then, will be the position of Kentneky upon this vital question? I know the manit impulses of her brave and patriotic sons. Will she evade it? She will not evade it; she will plant herself where honor, justice, and sympathy demand she should stand. Thus infinenced and thus acting, she will declare that neither justice, wisdom, nor necessity demand the employment of force, and that she will resist its exercise to the death. Her position, then, should be, and will be, that of an armed neutral, firmly and immovably resolved that a bloody and perhaps exterminating war shall not be luangurated by a premature and unnecessary collision between the contending parties. The first drop of blood sheat upon Southern soil would be the railying cry which would gather to one common standard a united South. The first gun fired would be the kneil of the Union. The cause of a people, as they avow, struggling for their constitutional include.

united South. The first gun fired would be the kneft of the Union. The cause of a people, as they avow, struggling for their constitutional rights, and sceking to protect themselves, their property, their wives, their children, their all worth living for or worth dying for, from the spoliations of the incendiary, and the plunders of the assassin and the robber, would that moment become a common cause. Upon the issues now made up between the citizens of the slaveholding States and the anti-slavery party of the Free States, the people of the Southern States cannot afford to be divided. Their destiny and interest, as involved in these issues, as thus made up, sirike not cally at the moral, social, and political equality of the fifteen Southern States in this Confederacy, but they strike at their rights of property in $4,000,000,000 worth of slaves; and above all, and worse than all, they involve the security of every hearthstone in the South from the attacks of the incendiary and the horrors of a revolution. Hence snch a cause, pregnant with interests so vital to them, will enist the sympathy of every manly son of the State or Federal Governments can restrain this sympathy, or their go powers of the State of Federal Govern no powers of the State of Federal Governments can restrain this sympathy, or their indignation or resistance, should this revolution thus be precipitated upon them by the exercise of force at this particular time. Should this not be prevented, the evil hour is already at hand when the class, of arms and the deep thundry of the cannon will close in an ocean of blood the last days of the American Union.

compactions of conscience and its Satanic purposes of heart, from the just reprehension of houest men everywhere.

When our fathers formed our present Union, they hoped and believed that it would endure while government existed among men. They laid its foundations deep and broad in the affections, intelligence, and public virtue of the people.—They threw around our liberty of person, our fire-side, our family aftar, our fiberty of conscience, and of speech and the press, a shield, as they believed, unightler than England's boasted Magna Charta — the shield of the American Constitution. They never dreamed that bigorry and faunticism would invade these sacred rights and pervert them from their high purposes of patriotism; they never dreamed that the Tempter would enter this Edeu of our peace and happiness; that from the school room, the public press, the pulpit and the public forum, in pharagaical phrase, he would extol alond his self-rightenancus; that to the poor abroad, who never asked, his doors were open to charity and his hand ready to give; but to the poor at home, who persised at his gates and begged a crumb from his table, he gave the charity of a scoff, and turned him away an hunger and athirst.

Such if the charity of Northern Abolithe deep thunders of the cannon will close in an ocean of blood the last days of the American Union.

Whatever may be the final or uitimate action of Kentneky in the premises, it seems to me that her dearest interest can hest be subserved and guarded by preventing the use of harsh or violent measures on the part of the Federal Government at this time egainst the seceding States.—The sentiments of ker people, I know, are still loyal to the Union of these states, provided her constitutional rights of equality can be maintained in it.—But these sha will demand at all hazards. She is not for the mease empty forms of a Government "that keeps its promises to the ear and breaks it to the hope." She will not cling to the dead body of the Union when its spirit of justice, protection, and equality has fied; she will not upheld and sustained by the justice and inviolability of a common Constitution and the ties of a common brotherhood; she will not upheld a Government whose Constitution is to be overthrown and whose powers are to be perverted from those of protection to those of oppression by a craz), dominant, popular majority in the free States, organized and custained upon the express grounds of hostility and hate to the people and the domestic institutions of fifteen states of the Confederacy. This uniopular majority is acon to be inangurated in all the high places of the Government.—They are pledged by their public press, by their public press, by their pripits, by the declarations of their seedles in Congress and upon the hustings, "to place the Government to strike down the institution of stavery wherever it can be reached ander the Constitution and wherever clee the converte the Constitution and wherever clee the content the Constitution of the Federal Government to strike down the institution of stavery wherever it can be reached under the Constitution and wherever clee the content the Constitution of the Federal Government to strike down the institution of the constitution thus construed by the antislavery party of a scoff, and turued him away an hunger and athirst.

Sach is the charity of Northern Abolitionism—the charity of the "rich unan" to the begging Lazurus dying at his gate. This Abolitionism, with its hypocritical cant, its blasphemous prayers, its mock charity, its infidelity and treasonable spirit has touched with its leprous hand the Constitution of the conutry, and that touch seems death. Its approach has been long and gradual, yet at last successful. It, to-day, in the language of Mr. Sminer to the "Wide Awakes at Providence, proclaims," that after the 4th of March next "a new order of things will be inaugurated, and then will commence the anti-stayery jubilee."

"a new order of things will be inaugurated, and then will commonce the anti-slavery jubilet."

Fellow-citizens, the crisis now upon ns is the most fearful through which we have ever been called to pass. If now we are true to ourselves, all may yet be well. If we now faiter or quall before the storm, we are cist,—we have failen to rise no more forever.

In our deliberations and final action, we should not underestimate our Federal Union. Next to the protection and maintenance of the inalienable rights of life, libert,, and property, the insurance of "do-incetic peace," which are the birth-rights of American citizens in every state and section, the Union is inestimable in value. If these can be protected—if the hand of the despolicr, upraised for their destruction, can be arrested, and the Union preserved in the apirit of justice and equality in which it was formed by our fathers, there is no manily heart upon the soil of Kentucky who would not citing to our "old banner" our fathers linseribed "justice, fraternly, and equality." and if these time-honored emblems are now to be erassed, and inspective, hate, and inquality written in their etuad, that will not be the banner our fathers pledged "their lues, their fortunes, and their sacred honor" to uphold. It will be the banner of the conglinition of our country, and our enslavement. If this wrong and unholy purpose is to be consumated, in God's name let It not be done while a single son of the South has a voice to raise, or an arm to defend. Kentucky has stood with such immovable devotion in days gone by.

The Union by which Kentucky has stood, and by which she will now stand, is a union of equality and fraternity—a union formed by a Constitution, held sacred and inviolate by a common public sentiment, North and Sonth—a union where every son of the Republic, whether upon land or sea, whether from the North or South, whether of native or foreign birth, as he looks upon the flag of his country, will realize that its mighty shield of protection is around and about him guarding his every right of fife, liberty and property. These are the hirth-rights of the American citizen. The Government was made to protect, and not to destroy them. The flag of our country is the sign of our covenant, the embien of our nationality, our justice and power. In this spirit let it be upheld, and our Union will never dissolve.

For each a union our fathers struggled, and by such a union fentucky will stand forever. For such a union ske would now make one more savnest and patriotic stand. She should undertake to so control events as to save every chance of a reconstruction of the Government, by amendments to the Constitution upon a basis that will guarantee scennity and protection to the people of the Southern States for their slave property, both in the States and Territories.

Kentucky, however, owes to herself end of the South has a voice to raise, or an arm to defend.

When, I sak, in the history of the world, did a brave and manly people tamely surrender their free-born rights of life, liberty and property, the sanctity of their hearth siones, the safety of their families, the dignity of their manhoos, as guaranteed by the Constitution of their country, to appease the bate, the maduess and the rancor of a lostife section, holding to the doctrines of a "higher law regulating their conduct" than the Constitution they have sworn to support? By the doctrines of a the following the same than the Southern States hold their $4,00,000,000 worth of slave property is to dissolve as a myth in the air. The Constitution, before such a public sentlment, will perish, and our rights as effizients and our equality as States, and our equality as States, and our equality as states, and the same property is to dissolve as a myth in the air. The public sentlment must be arrested, it must be net, it must be reslated.

Kentucky must now take her position must be arrested, it thust be n.et, it must be resisted.

Kentucky must now take her position either to surrender her rights and her equality in the Federal Union, or firmly take her stand by these rights and this egestify demanding additional constitutional guarannees for their observance and maintenance. By these alones and this equality I intend to stand to the last. No earthly power shall drive me from this position; and, were I to act otherwise, I should feel that I had betrayed you and dishonored myself. Every effort will be made to arrest the evil now upon us, and its force the Government to its original pairposes of jetter and equality.

I am ready to second every such effort. Here, in my place, I will stand by Kentucky and her fortunes through everyperil. I shall be willing to grant to other sections what is just, and shall be content to section 20thing less for my own. Upon the fair record of our reliant old Commonweith there is no stand of major. Her patriotism has been tested upon the field and in the connects of the nution. In the frying o, der' through which she is now about to pass, I wave confidence that she will steadily and firmly parsue the 415 ht. her place, either with the one or the other. In such a state of case she wit not heal tase; the path of duty is clear. It behooves her then to Thard against every atternative. She should not act without proper advisement with the other honder slave. States, but this should be had at the early.

Settled For Ever! The important question of POISON IN HAIR DYES! THE PARM : THE ORCHARD ! THE STUTE BANGE LOCISVILLE. ...JAN 5. 1861 Cristadoro's Hair Dye Mapes Doctrine of Progressive Primaries."

Has been analyzed and DECLARED HARMLESSI [CONCLUDED.]

Medical science was brought to bear on the question. Chalk or carbonets of lime, it is known, will correct acidity of the stomach; yet it was found that preliverized marble, which is chemically the same, would not do this. James' powders, composed of equal parts of antimony and phosphate of lime, were used sucressfully by the East India Company as a redictive for the soldiers. Dr. James prepared them, and he only knew their composition. After a time, it was arged that he should give the secret to the world, on the ground of philanthropy. He did so. Other companies went into the manufacture of them, and secured the contract to supply the army. The medicine made by them was found to fall. The East India Company complained of adhiteration, and lexituted PROF. ROB'T CHILTON, OF NEW YORK, The first analytic in Amerida. Effect of the Dye almost instantaneous. and secured the contract to supply the army. The mediclue made by them was found to fail. The East India Company complained of admiteration, and instituted a suit. Chemists were employed to make analysis of the medicines, and their composition was found to be the same as that of Dr. James. What could make the difference? Testimony revealed the fact that Dr. James made his powder from bone phosphate, while the other company made their's from the mineral phosphate. The James' powder now in use, is medo principally from mineral phosphate, and medical men in New York had informed him that it had none of its former efficacy, though they could not tell why. Theso, together with other facts, led him to the conclusion that the same natter needs to be in a different condition, (not chemically,) for a high order of plants, from what it is for a low order; and that it is the office of plants of a low order to bring matter up to a condition in which those of a higher order may use it. Hence, the doctrine of "progressive primaries." Like all other new ideas, its truth must be tested by rigid experiment. Nor will it do for scientific men to sit in judgment upon it, simply from their "knowledge of chemistry." Chemistry, as now maderstood, will never solve the question. If true, it will give a more plausible explanation than has hitherto been given to the fact, that in the geological history of the earth, the lower forms of organization made their appearance before the higher forms. The first vegetables and the first animals found in the older rocks, were much less perfect than those which afterward appeared; there has been a continual improvement up to the present day, and there uever was a time when men were looking for improved plants, animals, and men with stronger expectations than 10-day. Matter was in such a condition then, that the higher forms of organization could not take it up and use it; the mosses, lichens, and other class of plants, and so on. We see, also, why, in an old field, which has become exhausted of its by the application for years of the best known remedies.

plants must first do this, then astill higher class of plants, and so on. We see, also, why, In an old field, which has become exhausted of its progressed pabulum, at once throws up mosses, licheus, and weeds, and plants of a low organization.

But the questiou to the farmer after all la, "What is the value of this discovery to me?" I answer, first, if you purchese fertilizers, it at once enables you to discriminate between the good and the bad. If you wanted phoephates, it would direct you to such mari deposits as were of animal origin, instead of those of minoral, or bones of animals to the Estramadura or Dover rocks. If your soil has become exhausted, it shows us the means by which it may be brought back to a good degree of richness at the least expense of time and money. On this subject, we grope in the dark, to a great exteut. If our meadows refuse to grow grass after we have cropped them for a series of years, we are apt to think that they need only to be broken up, cropped to wheat, oats, or corn for a year or two, and then seeded down again; whereas, if this theory be true, we should seed them to some crop of a fower organization than the one which grew before, that it may progress the abundance of marerial already at hand to a condition in which grass, oats, etc., may use it. It glyas us also the true theory of rotation of crops. If we were to raise two successive crops of wheat on the same field, they might exhaust all the progressed pabnium flited for wheat; whereas, if we afternate wheat and clover, we might with the clover fit matter enough in oue year for acrop of wheat in the same field, they might exhaust all the progressed pabnium flited for wheat; whereas, if we afternate wheat and clover, we might with the clover fit matter enough in oue year for acrop of wheat; whereas, if we afternate wheat and clover, we might with the clover fit matter enough in oue year for acrop of wheat the uext, and so on. It also shows us where we may get our soil, and thus bankrupt us; but what she would gain we sho was all that I could desire. A single plaster cured me in a week.

what she would gain we should lose, and this would be no real gain to the world as a whole. But there is an almost inexhaustible supply of these very materials in uncivilized and nneulityated countries, of no nse there; these we may take, and no hatm is done.

The pampas of South America contain the bones of wild cattle, shaughiered or otherwise destroyed there, of no use to them, but of great use to us. So do the gano islands, and so do our own forests and ewamps. We might remove them all, and the great variety of plants which grow there, would continually be fitting further supplies so as to restore the balance. It will also teach us the relation of chemistry to agrieniture. Chemists have about given no that they cannot, by analyzing a soil, reil its value or its needs. This tells us why. They analyze the soil and find abundance of potash, lime, etc., and supposed it needs no more; but if these are unprogressed, it needs to have as much in proper condition added to it, as if it contained none. There is little difference between an analysis of the soils of the Sciota. HOLDAY PRESENTS proper condition added to it, as if it contained none. There is little difference batween an analysis of the soils of the Sciota Bottoms and the soils of New England, and yet the former is very much more productive. Why? The former is made of the debris of plants and animals of a high order; the latter is made of the debris of granite and other rocks, with less of the debris of animals or vegetable life. It also puts a quietus on the theories of Political Economists, who lusist that if the earth should ever be densely populated, as it would be if war, famine and pestilence did not prematurely ent off a greal number before they had fulfilled their destluy, the earth would not support them for if all the matter on the surface of the earth should become progressed to a high degree, as it may in time by proper system of husbaudry, its product venes could be increased to any desirable extent.

A portion of the hanks, however of uote. A portion of the hanks, however, were open, and there was a good demand for money to meet the heavy payments falling due, but as far as we could learn they were all readily met with that promptness which has always characterized the business men of Loulwille. Now that the much dreaded day is past, we hope that matters will begin to brighten up, and the prospects are that the present mouth will close on a very easy money market.—

At the South the business is looming up, and our dispatches from there during the past day or two have quoted large sales and exports of cotton, being nearly as large as last seasou. The demand for produce and provisions here is increasing, and the shipuents are large to fill Southern orders. By the close of auother week business will in all probability assume a safe footing. Commercial business courin mes inactive, with not enough doing to alford quotations or give indications of change in the market. Coal is firm with an npward tendency. Foreign raw sugars are improved nominally bynews from Cblma, but there are no transactions to establish an advance as yet; relined still slow of sale at 14½. Breadstiff operations suspended for lack of receipts, and buyers are retained from forcing the market by the complexion of the advices from New York and England. Freights are declining.—Money in fair supply, but mostly in demand to remit to the eastward. The Pougenber 4th, was received at San Francisco on the 20th. The President's Message entire was telegraphed from Saint Lonis to Fort Kearney, where it overtook the pony on the 'th Inst., and thus came through to Sacramento, arriving on the 18th. It was telegraphed thence to San Francisco by two lines, and immediately published in the Bulletin and Alta. The reading of the message and of the proceedings of Congress up to the 'th, tended to increase the auxlety of the people concerning the critical condition of the Union. The centre press of the State now takes a serious view of the secession movement, and favors the preservation of the Union, if possible, by mutual concessions. All the Republican papers advocate the repeal of the Personal Liberty bills of the Northern States. There is some talk of organizing a Pacific Republic if the Somb secedes, but the preservation of the Union, if preserve the Uniga as it is, and to stay with all that remains of the Union II any portion secedes. Governor Jackson's Inaugural. Governor Jackson's Inaugural. Ex. Lovis, Jan. 4.—Governor Jackson's Inaugural is alreast exclusively devoted to the discussion of Federal splittings. He says the destiny of the slaveholding States is identical, and Missouri will best consulter own interests, and the Interests of the whole country, by a timely declaration of her determination to stand by her sister slaveholding States, an whose wrongs she participates, and with whose institutions and neonle she symmathizes. Missouri participates, and with whose institutions and people she sympathizes. Missonri will remain in the Union so long as there is a hope of maintaining the guarantees of the Constitution, but if the Northern States are determined to put the slaveholding States on a footing of inequality by preventing the entrance of slaves into the Territorica, and by refnsing to admit his mage slave States into the Union, and hy persisting in multifying and perverting the Constitution in reference to slave property, then they themselves practically abandon the Union and caunot expect the South to enbmit to sneh incomment. The Governor opposes coercion, and easy that the project of maintaining the Government by force, maylend to sconsolidated despotism that were to Union. Our footernment is based upon justice and equality, standing armies and accounty soldiers are subject to the will of the Executive, and are not the remedies for violated Constitutions and laws. The first drop of his sled in a war of aggression upon a soveritien. State will arouse a spirit which will result in the overthrow of the entire Federal system. The Governor has not abandoned all hope for the preservation of the Union, but believes by prudence and well-directed efforts an adjustment, alike honorable to beth sectious, may be effected. He opposes Gongressional controversies, and asysthe Sonih campely only on constitution alguarantees, and the effect this end he advises the calling of a Southern Convention to agree upon such amendments to the Constitution as would secure their just rights, and submit them to the Northern States for their action. He also advises the calling of a State Convention of the militia to repel invasion and protect the property of citizens. He recommends legislation on the suspension of speele payment by the bauks.

This done, and no government remains to us but a voluntary association of States, dissolvable at the pleasure of any of them. If South Carolina may of right secede, then may New York and Louislam, thus cutting off the free right of way of the entire Nothwest to the occau in both directions. The doutrine cannot be admitted self-preservation, if no other reason, must compelus to resist this. He denies that the Personal Liberty bills have

He invites judicial serminy with the legislation of the State, and is willing to ablde by the result, but is not willing that the State should he humilisted by a compliance with the demand to repeal these laws, accompanied by threats of violence and war. He concluded by recommending that at an early day the Legislature make it manifest to our Representative in Congress and to the country that Michigan is loyal to the Union, the Constitution, and the laws, and to profer to the use of the United States the whole military power of the State for that purpose. THE LOUISVILLE COURIER

THE events of the year before na will be fraught with a greater interest to the people of the whole country than those of the exciting period through which we have just passed—as thrilling in their nature and as important in their results as they have been. For the first time in the history of our country, a political party, purely and strictly sectional, has suc-

eeded in electing the Chief Executive office of the nation, and thus obtained control of one department of the Federal Government. This has alarmed the people of the other section, and precipitated movements looking to a dissolu-tion of the Union. The whole country—and the people of all the States alike—are deeply and qually interested in what concerns the welfare every American citizen, whether in the orth or the South, and whether si home or abroad. We are evidently surrounded by perils of no ordinary magnitude—dangers that may barsi upon us in all their terrible reality at any bonr. No man worthy of liberty can real in aconcerned ignorance of events now daily oc-arring in all parts of the country; and a nowledge of these matters can best be oh ained ibrough such a newspaper as the
